CHARLES AGNEW MACLEAN

Love and high finance are admirably blended in this romance of a young New York newspaper man who impersonates the son of a dying Wall Street magnate, and thus becomes the important factor in a gigantic struggle between opposing financial interests.

THE MAINSPRING has a plot that unwinds all too fast. You'll want to read it twice!

THE BIG BASEBALL BOOKREADY TODAYPitching in a Pinch or, Baseball from the InsideBy CHRISTY MATHEWSON*The Star Pitcher of the New York Giants

“Christy” Mathewson, by many followers of baseball declared the greatest twirler that ever lived, has written a series of stories about the Big Leaguers, the men who have played the game with him.

Every “fan” likes to know a little more about the game than the other fellow. In these stories, “Matty” is letting the reader “inside.” He brings the reader up close to the game, makes him feel that he is personally acquainted with all the great stars, and almost leads him to believe that he is playing the game himself.

In short, it is a series of gripping stories of the Big Leaguers, past and present, stories of their styles, their “grooves,” and how they play the game, written by a man who is on the “inside.”

George Wendern Gave a Party

A story of love and wild-cat speculation, whose hero, a quixotic figure perhaps, stands out as living honor from a throng of selfish business men and investors; whose heroine, an American heiress, ambitious from uncommon and unselfish motives for title, is a personality of extraordinary charm; whose climax, the party George Wendern gave, forms one of the oddest and most striking dénouements in recent fiction; whose author, a novelist of note, chooses in this case, as an experiment, to use an assumed name, "John Inglis."

The Convictions of a Grandfather

As everybody knows who has read his "Opinions of a Philosopher" and his "Reflections of a Married Man," the writer is a shrewd and genial philosopher; he views contemporary life with a keen if indulgent eye. Not a question of the day, big or little, confronting an American family of comfortable circumstances, but he touches here, with his sympathy and humor, yet in such a way as to show the true proportions of each; its relation to the truly significant things of life.

Molly Day, May 18th

A New Novel by Maria Thompson Daviess, Author of Miss Selina Lue, etc.

The Melting of Molly

Cousin Tom, and Dr. John,
The Judge, and many a lover,—
Round about the lovely Molly,
Eagerly they hover.

Molly was the plumpest and merriest of widows.

Molly loved Alfred Bennett in her girlhood days; now he was coming home a distinguished diplomat and wanted to see Molly in the same blue muslin dress (waist measure twenty-three inches) which she had worn years before.

So Molly had to grow slim as a string-bean in just three months. And as she had at least four suitors, the melting process—a fairly complicated business—was often interrupted. The gay, irresistible Molly, all sweetness and spice, and everything nice, is a most fetching heroine.

"The Adventures of Captain Kettle," etc.

The Marriage of Captain Kettle

THE story grips from the start. The reader is caught at once. Quick wits and sheer courage count for everything and make this book thrilling. The love story is unique. Nothing more picturesque can be imagined than Bergash, the Berber chieftain, educated at Cambridge, and ruling in his ancient castle his rude and dangerous people.

How Captain Kettle, unaided, works his way to the Berber stronghold to his beloved, is one of the most absorbing adventures. Dancing blue waves and the flavor of the salt seas lend their fascination. Cutcliffe Hyne is famous for his tales of the sea and this is easily his best.

DUMAS did not write The Minister of Police, but that is only because he did not think of it. Here again is French Romance; mad rides and daring escapes; beating hearts and leaping pulses; while silks and scandal rustle together and intrigue on intrigue follows hard. Once more old Paris with its splendid Court, its Bastille and its Versailles, is before you, in the fascinating time when the fifteenth Louis ruled France—and Madame du Barry ruled Louis. Rousseau, the wise dreamer, and Richelieu, the seventy-year-old beau, strut and fret through the pages. French Romance is awake again.

A State Secret

By W. TRAFFORD-TAUNTON

Author of "The Silent Dominion," "The Threshold," "Igdrasis," etc.

A historical romance of the time of Charles II, replete with excitement and of absorbing interest. The principal character is the handsome and clever, if dissolute, Earl of Rochester; the heroine, the beautiful Elizabeth Malet. The story is chiefly concerned with the appearance in England of a son of the king, said to have been born of a lawful wife—married during his exile—many semi-authentic accounts exist of such a union. That the young heir should come to England but to fall in love with Rochester's sweetheart, and that the succession to the throne should depend upon Elizabeth Malet's love, is the theme of this charming tale, written with dramatic force, and will not fail to hold the reader's attention to the end.

THE PARCELS POST PROVISION.

THE postal discussions which culminated in Committee of the Whole in the House Tuesday night have resulted in action somewhat mixed and confusing, in which, however, the friends of postal progress will at least find encouragement. Happily both the debates and the final action were of a non-partisan character, not at all on party lines, and there has seldom been debate in which so many and so contradictory amendments were voted upon. As one correspondent pointed out, the views of the Postal Progress League represented in the Sulzer bill, which seemed radical, have become almost conservative in comparison with those of the extreme advocates of the taking over of the express companies and the monopolization by the government of express transportation as a part of postal matter. In view of the honest differences of opinion developed in the debate, the plan of taking partial and provisional action and of appointing a joint committee of three senators and three representatives to propose a final scheme may perhaps be accepted as wise.

The Committee of the Whole, in accordance with the final recommendation of Chairman Moon of the Post Office Committee, reported to the House amendments to the Post Office Appropriation bill providing for a general parcels post at the international rate of twelve cents a pound and a parcels post within rural delivery routes at five cents for the first pound and one cent a pound thereafter up to a maximum of fifteen cents for eleven pounds, which is the limit for postal parcels both in the general and rural schemes. Both of these are substantial steps forward, avoiding a serious reorganization in any part of the Post Office Department, and thus discounting the fear of the Postmaster-General that the department might be swamped by premature development of business. It is to be hoped that the Senate may join the House in favorable action on these compromise proposals, which, though they satisfy no one, should gratify all friends of postal advance. The House, doubtless tired of debate on this question, rejected, on Thursday, a proposal of Mr. Mann, the minority leader, for a permanent parcels post on the zone system, and adopted the committee report, 227 to 5.

The wording of the amendments raises one very serious question—whether the new rates do not supersede altogether the old fourth-class rates, and thus repeal the ounce rates and make the initial charges for fractions of a pound higher than before. The defect noted, if it exists, may easily be cured in the Senate.

Unfortunately the Post Office Appropriation bill has been made the vehicle not only for this new legislation, but for other schemes of wider and of more doubtful character. One of these schemes is a good roads proposition, involving a bonus from the Post Office Department for the encouragement of better roads, amounting, possibly, to fourteen millions of dollars, and another is the requirement that periodicals should publish, from time to time, not only the names of the responsible officers or editors, but of all stockholders. It is also provided that paid reading matter shall be designated as advertisements. These are matters quite separate from postal questions, and ought not to be included in a postal measure.

We hope that the parcels post plan may not be endangered by the weighting down of the appropriation bill with these extraneous matters, and that before the close of the session the Senate may concur with the House in the steps forward indicated by the compromise.

It may be authoritatively stated that it is not and never has been the intent or practice of the Copyright Office to require that the affidavit should be made the day after publication. The notice "the date of the affidavit must be subsequent to the date of publication" on the affidavit blank, means simply that the affidavit of publication cannot be made before the event, an error which, however absurd, has many times been made. The word "date" is there used in the proper sense of a point in time. To prevent misunderstanding, however, the Copyright Office will, in its next printing of the form, modify the language to preclude misinterpretation. We have recently emphasized the fact that protection before publication can be had only through common law, but immediately on publication the affidavit can be made and copies deposited in the mails, so that proceedings can be instituted at once without practical gap. There should be no attempt to make several entries or secure different certificates of registration for publication made at different times or in different forms of the same material. It is a fundamental principle that there can be only one copyright for the same matter, and disregard of this simple principle involves serious and sometimes disastrous confusion. In ordinary book publication there is no haste, but when a newspaper has reason to protect important matter in the wee sma' hours, it should do so, first by application for injunction under common law against the printing of unpublished matter, and second by copyrighting the material under the statute, whether in book form or as part of the periodical matters little, by affidavit and deposit of copies in the mail instantly on publication and immediate application to a judge for a preliminary injunction under the statute.

AFTER all, the most significant thing about the Builders' Exchange fire is not the fire itself, but the rapidity with which the publishers concerned got over the effects of it. Before the fire was over leases were being signed for temporary quarters, and by noon of the day after the fire the various publishing house staffs were as busy filling orders as though nothing of particular importance had occurred. No lives were lost, fortunately, and no property loss that cannot be liquidated. Of course, the fire has caused and will cause an immense amount of trouble and extra work; but the spirit shown by those affected is not one easily daunted by such insignificant matters as work and trouble. Stock can be replaced; records, with few exceptions, remade; furniture and fixtures are easily duplicated. We venture that in six months "the fire" will be but a memory.

Printers' Ink says: "Overload the dealer with enthusiasm, and the order will take care of itself."

"A system that won't bend, coupled with a mind that won't change, would ruin any business."

THE CONDUCT OF A RETAIL BOOK BUSINESS.

AN ADDRESS BY MR. SIMON BRENTANO IN THE LECTURE COURSE OF THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE.

Ladies and Gentlemen of the New York School for Booksellers:

I ADDRESS you thus because I trust that from this initial meeting will come into full realization a practical training school for booksellers. In my judgment, looking over trade conditions, there can be very small advancement for retail bookselling unless it is started right at the base—and that means with an ardent and complete force of book clerks throughout this country, who have a trade training that will enable them to strengthen themselves and the respective concerns in which they are employed.

It will not be possible or wise to attempt in this brief talk to touch upon many matters involved in modern retail bookselling, but it may be profitable to make record of some principles that in our experience have been amply demonstrated, and which doubtless have been the observation of many other retail book stores.

At the beginning of a business is the assembling or collection of a stock and its careful maintenance thereafter as a retail bookseller's stock, fitted for the community which the bookseller expects to serve. Unless a bookseller has some fixed and clear ideas regarding the buying, and careful and constant care of his stock, to keep it appealing, attractive and helpful to his customers or prospective customers, it seems futile to expect to win or to broaden trade.

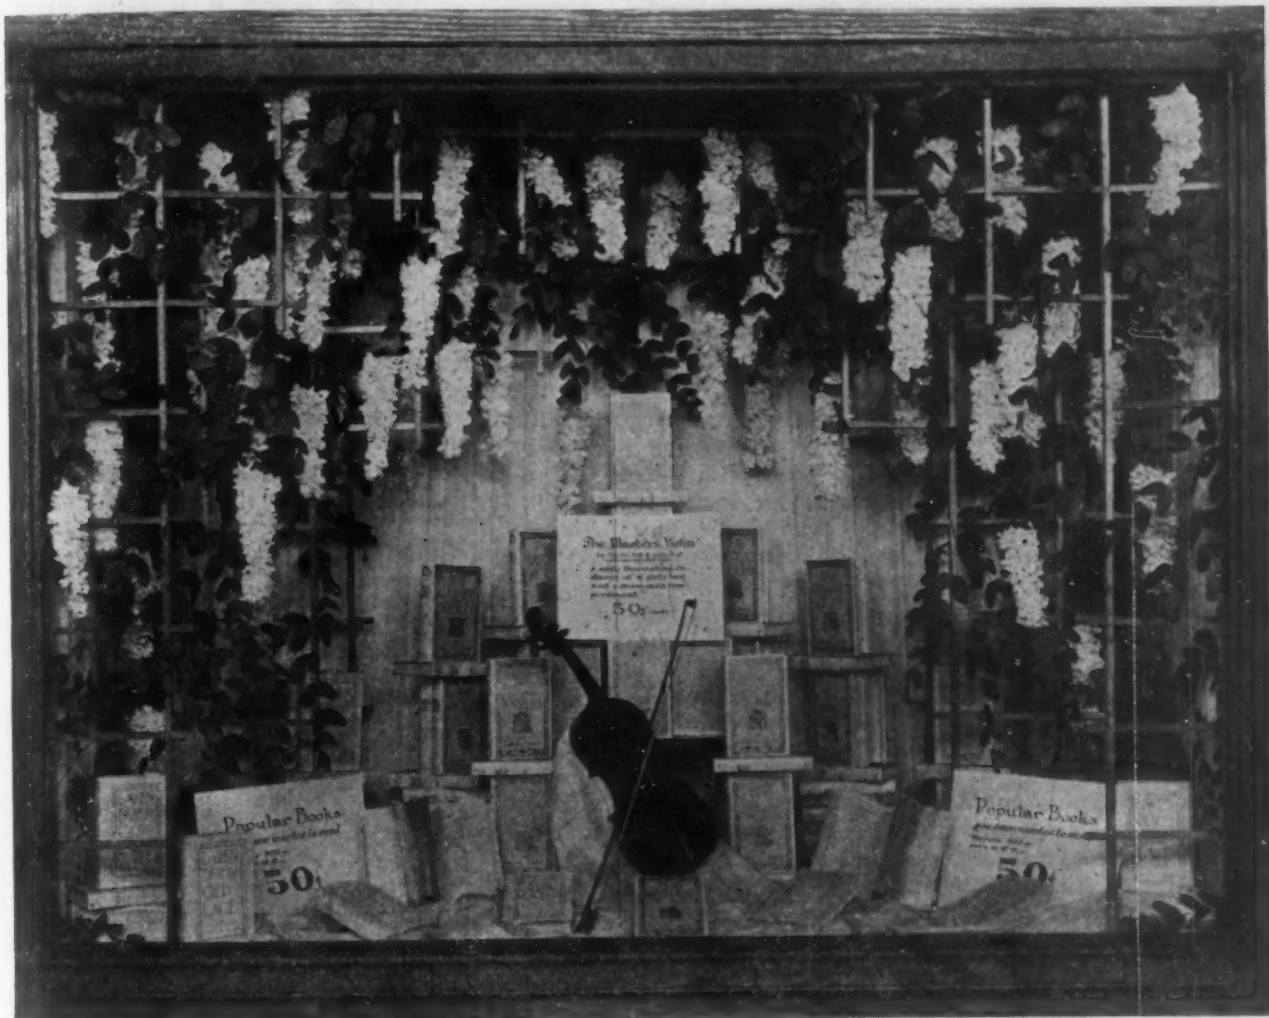

The first impulse for successful bookselling must come from the store itself, the brains, taste or knowledge for the getting together of a serviceable, salable stock, and the character and ability for offering it. For this reason a bookseller must of necessity have such a well-grounded interest in various departments of literature, as will enable him to present books with good judgment and safe recommendations to his buyers. To a larger extent than is perhaps realized, the customer relies upon the judgment of the bookseller. Therefore this judgment should in every instance be an honest one, and no bookseller should permit himself knowingly to recommend an inferior book because a better one is temporarily out of stock. Furthermore, he should not compel his customers to suffer because he at any time has reason to discontinue friendly relations with any publisher. Whatever may be the relations between a publisher and bookseller, they concern them alone; the interest of the customer must not be overlooked. It is, in brief, a short-sighted policy to keep from a bookseller's stock books that are needed and which the public wants, simply because there is friction between a publisher and the dealer.

A conscientious interest taken in as many different books and subjects as the bookseller is humanly able will find a complete reward, if not over night, in a reasonable time, in the reputation established and the sales that come to all such houses. It is the very essence of bookselling at retail that stock must be known; not alone that which is on the shelves, but thousands of books which are never kept, but which are secured to order.

Any lasting success in the field of bookselling, as in almost any other business, depends civility, or lack of many other qualities within the power of such an employer to correct, will remain undiscovered or overlooked. A pleased customer well served is so much capital for the employer. Such good service shows and grows, and it does and must establish the personal sense of power and knowledge of the good employee. Whether in a bookstore or in any calling, the qualities that upon the character, ability and fidelity or loyalty of the people employed by it. Every employee must have sufficient character and self-respect to be honestly courteous, and to give the best service in him, not under compulsion or fear or rules, but solely because he is inspired by that sense of duty to endeavor to meet the wishes of those he serves.

The most confusing and hurtful thought that can lodge in the mind of any employee is this, that his own character and reputation is not at stake, as well of that of the house where he is employed, in case he is undutiful. Many clerks believe in the general reputation of the house, but that their own personal unfitness, or unwillingness, or lack of ability or in-win appreciation from many different people are those that will permanently help. Another mistake is not to give all customers equal service, or to attempt to, to try to sift out good customers from unlikely ones. The greatest success in salesmanship results from unflinching courtesy and help extended to all alike.

Why do not book clerks apply the test of their daily and personal experience to their own conduct? When they buy a tie or a pair of shoes, or clothes, they know instantly whether they are being conscientiously and civilly and intelligently served. Why do they not more often use the lesson of incompetency and incivility manifested and apply it to their own improvement. From our observation, it is clear that the book business, appealing to so many tastes and minds, must have in its service painstaking and interested clerks, who do consider their own character and reputation at stake. Without such service, the best stock and store are inanimate and purposeless.

Book clerks should read the book reviews and book news intelligently, and with the purpose of cultivating a sound discrimination in the judging of good literature. It is a pity that many book clerks do not open their minds more freely to the examination of stock or read the reviews of books other than fiction.

In this age, with the perplexities that confront the political life of this and all countries, with the desire and opportunities of masses of people for reading, it behooves a bookseller to have those serious and thoughtful books touching upon the economic and social questions of the day. There is something, indeed, amiss when book clerks fail to perceive this opportunity for presenting and educating customers into readers of stimulating, wholesome books on these questions.

The chief thing in any business—in none should it prevail more than in bookselling—is to have some ideal in view in its conduct. It is pitiful that the practical work of the day leaves the ideal thus fixed so distant often from achievement, and yet the self-imposed task remains worth while, and supplies the impetus for the exercise of the more wholesome features of business life.

The business of selling books at retail is one of infinite detail, requiring patience and forbearance, and yet it is doubtful whether in any other field of commercial pursuit are made those intimate and lasting business friendships that arise in the book business.

All employees, and the head of the house as well, should remember to protect and cherish customers, almost under any provocation or complaint. It is unfortunate that employees or principals even become contentious with a customer, and often assume that because a customer is wrong, and manifestly wrong, that they must make this clear and rebuke the customer or humiliate him. They feel they hurt their own reputation or that of the house unless they do this, whether in personal contact or through correspondence. Now why do we not all reflect that we are trained in service, that a customer may often be tired or worried, or hurried, and whatever his complaint he will with rare exception reflect over it and see his wrong even the more quickly if not forced into it. You booksellers must remember that you are soldiers; don't get tired, worried or perplexed. It is your business to be calm and patient. When the customer goes home he will think over what a fool he has made of himself.

Whenever we hear too often from an employee, alluding to such and such a customer, that he or she is a crank, we are not so sure that he can serve people who are not cranks.

If a retail bookseller survives at all, it is because he is giving service, or, in other words, his necessity is felt by enough people to make him worth while. Whenever this service ceases, or the character of our service does not appeal to a circle large enough, then cease our business and profits.

Carlyle says: "In books lies the soul of the whole past time; the articulate audible voice of the past, when the body and material substance of it has altogether vanished like a dream. . . . All that mankind has done, thought, gained, or been; it is lying as in magic preservation in the pages of books. . . . Any good book, any book that is wiser than yourself, will teach you something—a great many things, directly and indirectly, if your mind be open to learn. This old counsel of Johnson's is also good and universally applicable: 'Read the book you do honestly feel a wish and curiosity to read.' The very wish and curiosity indicates that you, then and there, are the person likely to get good of it."

Ladies and gentlemen of the New York Booksellers' School, a good book can always work the miracle that it did of old. I would express the wish to all those here that they try to preserve the best traditions of the early bookseller, try to be helpful in selecting good books, try to continue in that way the services given in the past by the best men in retail bookselling.

BAD FIRE IN NEW YORK CITY.

WHAT was probably the most disastrous fire the publishers of New York City have ever suffered occurred between 11:30 and 2 A.M. last Monday night, when about half the floors of the Builders' Exchange, a twelve-story building, at 29, 31 and 33 West 32d Street, were gutted. The building housed a number of well-known publishing houses: the Oxford University Press were on the third floor; Henry Holt & Company on the fifth; D. Appleton & Company had the seventh floor; George H. Doran Company the eighth, and the Encyclopedia Britannica the ninth.

The fire started from an unknown cause, apparently on the seventh floor, though there is no definite knowledge, and evidently had been smoldering for some time before it broke out. When it did it was erratic, burning the seventh and eighth, and then skipping several floors, only to break out again two floors above, following the freight elevator shafts on the east side of the building. The latter runs through to and has an entrance on 33d Street, but, fortunately, this end of the building remained practically intact. Both Holt and Doran carried their stock on their floors, roughly, half a million volumes apiece, and this and the quantity of filing cases and furniture made an exceedingly hot fire and one hard to fight.

FIRE SPREAD RAPIDLY.

Fire Chief Kenlon was directing a three-alarm fire further down Broadway when the rapid spread of the 32d Street fire brought him thither to direct the fight on the latter in person. The building is situated in the heart of the hotel district, and is surrounded for blocks by buildings as high or higher.

A crowd, numbered in the thousands, gathered. A number of large hotels in the neighborhood poured out crowds of frightened people. The Imperial Hotel, across the street, was emptied. Due west were the Hotel Martinique and the Hotel Pierrepont; on the other side the Hotel Aberdeen and the Waldorf-Astoria.

Twenty firemen, who were handling the fire apparatus on the eleventh floor, were nearly cut off when the fire dropped to the seventh floor. Looking out of the window, they discovered the fire beneath them. They escaped by climbing down the fire-escape on the south side of the building.

Chief Kenlon stood on the roof of the burning building and directed the tons and tons of water which were poured into the building by water towers and the twenty or thirty engines which four alarms had brought to the fire. Apparatus of all sorts clogged the streets, and traffic was wellnigh at a standstill. The crowd in Broadway was dense, and tried hard to get close to the fire, but the fire lines were closely drawn. The fire was easy to see, however, being one of the most spectacular New York has had in some months.

HOW THE PUBLISHERS SUFFERED.

D. Appleton & Company suffered severely from the fire, all the 32d Street end of their floor being pretty well cleaned out. Their loss included all the business and general office furniture and fixtures, and valuable files that it will be very difficult or impossible to replace. Fortunately, however, they carried no stock, and the editorial rooms were at the other end of the building and were untouched.

The George H. Doran Company were burned out in part, and suffered a heavy loss from water. Thousands of volumes of stock were burned or knocked by streams of water into sodden, smoldering heaps on the floor. The firm's records are, however, intact.

The Holt and Oxford University losses were by water, rivers of which poured through from the floors above. The salvage people did unusually efficacious work, however; every underwriter's company in Manhattan responded promptly, and stock was protected by tarpaulins in a way that saved thousands of dollars' worth. With floors running a foot deep in water, however, there was necessarily heavy damage, though how much it is not yet possible to say.

All the firms affected are, it is understood, amply protected by insurance, and any necessary interruption of business will be but temporary.

NEW QUARTERS IMMEDIATELY SECURED.

With commendable promptness, Henry Holt & Company secured temporary quarters with the John Lane Company, 4 West 32d Street, while the firemen were still on the scene. They expect to be back in their old quarters, however, in a few days. The Oxford University Press continue at their present address.

D. Appleton & Company are also continuing work in their editorial rooms without interruption. The sales department, however, being burned out, the clerical force and business there were transferred to the company's factory at Kent Avenue and Hewes Street, Williamsburg. This department was brought back later in the week and placed temporarily in the New Center Building, two doors west of the Builders' Exchange Building.

George H. Doran, the worst sufferer by fire and water, the stock of publications and office fixtures being a complete wreck, will remain in the building, though he does not know when he will be able to resume business there. His loss was fully insured. Meanwhile he is in temporary offices across the street.

The Encyclopedia Britannica, which takes up the entire ninth floor, was skipped by the fire, though the 32d Street side, comprising the circularizing room, stock room, shipping room and accounting department, was badly damaged by water. All the records of the firm are saved, including the accounts all over the United States, Canada, Alaska, Porto Rico and Mexico, as well as subscribers' lists, the loss of which would have entailed enormous trouble. The executive offices on the northern side are undamaged, and business was carried on as usual there the next day. It was explained that the actual stock of the encyclopedia is intact, inasmuch as it is stored in a warehouse at 32d Street and Sixth Avenue.

The total damage is estimated by the police at $300,000. It is probable, however, that publishers' losses alone will reach this amount.

PART III. OF THE HOE SALE ENDS.

THE third part of the Hoe sale ended April 26. Few high prices were brought Thursday. The usual number of buyers attended, and the usual lion's share of the high-priced books went to George D. Smith, who bought for $1160 a Shakespeare Third Folio, printed for "P. C." in 1664. This the George Daniel copy, and his autograph is on the flyleaf. It is a very fine example of the Third Folio, which is generally considered even scarcer than the First Folio, most of it having been destroyed in the great fire of London.

Mrs. Robert Hoe bought a copy of the first edition of Jules Sandeau's "Valereuse" for $685, and Mr. Smith secured Capt. John Smith's "Advertisements for the Unexperienced Planters of New England," etc., for $510. He also bought the Countess of Pembroke's "Arcadia," by Sir Philip Sidney, for $510.

Other important items were:

"Memoirs of the Life of Richard B. Sheridan," by Thomas Moore, first edition, London, 1825, binding by Riviere, presentation copy from the author, with inscription, "To Mountjoy (Lord Mountjoy) from his friend, Thomas Moore," extra illustrated, $180 (Smith).

"The Countesse of Pembroke's Arcadia," by Sir Philip Sidney, London, 1598, with the arms of Queen Elizabeth in the center, $450 (Smith).

"Moeoniae. Or Certaine Excellent Poems and Spiritual Hymns," by Robert Southwell, first edition, London, 1595, $260 (Smith). Southwell was a Jesuit, and, as a native-born English subject, ordained to the Roman Catholic priesthood, was arrested for treason, and after three years' imprisonment, with frequent tortures, he was executed on February 21, 1595, the same year that this book of poems by him appeared.

Second issue of the first edition of "The Faerie Queene," by Edmund Spenser, London, 1590, $115 (Smith).

First edition of "Tristram Shandy," by Lawrence Sterne, nine volumes duodecimo, London, 1760-67, with Sterne's autograph signature in three of the volumes, $106 (Smith).

"The Spanish Libertines," by John Stevens, London, 1707, $105 (Smith).

Joseph Strutt's "Biographical Dictionary," London, 1785, extra illustrated, $155 (Smith).

"The Discontented Colonell," by Sir John Suckling, first edition, London, 1640, binding by Zaehnsdorf, $120 (Smith).

"Opera" of Sallust, first Aldine edition, Venice, 1509, binding by C. Smith, $150 (Dodd, & Livingston).

First edition of "The Lay of the Last Minstrel," by Sir Walter Scott, London, 1805, red levant morocco by the Club Bindery, extra illustrated, $115 (Smith).

Fifth edition of the quarto, "Tragedy of Hamlet, Prince of Denmark," by Shakespeare, London, 1637, binding by Riviere, $150 (Smith).

FRIDAY'S SESSIONS.

While there was not a large attendance at the closing sessions of the sale of Part III., some lively bidding was indulged in, most of the purchases being made by George D. Smith. The highest price was paid by G. S. Hellman for Voltaire's "La Fantasmie," in half levant morocco with gilt top. Mr. Smith bid well up for possession of the book, which was knocked down to Mr. Hellman for $700.

W. M. Hill, of Chicago, bought for $465 a sixteenth-century volume of François Villon. The work is extremely rare and comprises a series of reviews, bound in red levant morocco, gilt and blind tooled, with gilt ornamental borders by Trautz-Bauzonnet.

One of the remarkable bargains of the evening was a London volume of Henry Whitfield's chronicled studies of the Indians of New England, published by John Bartlet in 1651. The book was bought by George D. Smith for $500. It is the fifth of the Eliot tracts, containing five letters from Eliot and one from Mayhew.

Mr. Smith also bought most of Voltaire's works sold last evening, the prize of the collection, with the exception of Mr. Hellman's purchase, being a complete set of Voltaire's works in seventy volumes. This celebrated edition was due to Beaumarchais, who established at Kehl, in 1785-89, a printing press for the purpose of publishing the work. Walter M. Hill gave $465 for an extremely rare edition of the works of François Villon, printed in 1540.

Horace Walpole's drawings and sketches of the Gothic mansion at Strawberry Hill, Twickenham, and of several of the antiques and curiosities in his collection, elaborately illustrated, brought $310. The sum of $460 was paid for "Servitude et Grandeur Militaires," by Alfred, Comte de Vigny, in morocco gilt, uncut, illustrated by valuable etchings. Both purchases were made by Mr. Smith.

At the afternoon session, Dodd, Livingston & Co. gave $390 for a Thesaurus—one of the rarest productions of the Aldine press—a first edition, in Greek characters, thirty lines to the page, printed in 1496. The same buyers obtained for $325 a first Aldine edition of "Comœdiæ," by Terence, printed on vellum in 1517. A first edition of Oscar Wilde's "The Picture of Dorian Gray," which is regarded as extremely valuable, because it is an autograph presentation copy from the author, with inscription to Marcel Schwob, went for $100 to M. Sloog.

PART III. TOTALS $200,150.

The total of the twenty sessions, comprising Part III., amounts to $200,150, as compared with $471,619.25 for the twenty sessions of Part II., and with $997,366 for the nineteen sessions of Part I. The grand total for the three parts is $1,669,135.75. Two more parts remain to be sold, and the expectation is that the total for the entire library will reach $2,000,000.

George D. Smith, for himself and for his customers, is by long odds the heaviest buyer in Part III., as he was in Parts I. and II. His Part III. purchases amount to about $115,000, as compared with $130,000 in Part II., and $523,000 in Part I. This makes his total purchases for the three parts $768,000. Miss Belle da Costa Greene, librarian for J. Pierpont Morgan, and Bernard Quaritch, of London, were conspicuously absent from the sessions of Part III., and it is said that but a single item was bought by either. James F. Drake, of New York, and Dr. A. W. S. Rosenbach, of Philadelphia, were, next to Mr. Smith, the largest buyers in Part III., their purchases aggregating from $10,000 to $12,000 each.

The dissolution of the partnership between Mr. Smith and Robert Lee Rose was announced at the concluding session. It was entered into about a year ago, just before the beginning of the sale of Part I. of the Hoe library. Henry E. Huntington has been absent from the sessions of Parts II. and III., but Messrs. Smith and Rose have been buying extensively for him. Mr. Smith said last night that Mr. Huntington's purchases in Part III. amount to about $33,000. The dissolution of partnership is amicable, Mr. Smith buying out Mr. Rose's interest.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN DECISION NOT FINAL.

WE are informed by Munn & Co., publishers of the Scientific American, that the decision recently rendered in their litigation with the Scientific American Compiling Department, publishers of the "Encyclopedia Americana," was one upon a motion for a preliminary injunction only, and is in no sense final. This decision was reported in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY of April 20, in such terms as possibly to give the impression that the decision rendered was one of the suit proper. The hearing for this, however, has been set for July.

Munn & Co. desired to stop without delay the use of the title, "Scientific American," in connection with the American enterprise, with which the Munn & Co. has no affiliation. Vice-Chancellor Emery refused to grant a preliminary injunction, simply on the ground that "in this case the preliminary injunction applied for is substantially the full relief to which complainant would be entitled if its case is made out on final hearing, and this relief, if ultimately granted, is of such a character that it would require to be carefully worked out by decree in order that the corporate rights of the defendant, 'The Scientific American Compiling Department,' which should not be interfered with except to the extent necessary to grant to complainant the relief to which it may be found to be entitled, may not be unnecessarily impaired."

A CATALOGUE OF BOOKS PRINTED BY THE CHIEF MODERN ENGLISH PRESSES.

"THE REVIVAL OF PRINTING: a Bibliographical Catalogue of Works Issued by the Chief Modern English Presses, with an Introduction by Robert Steele," is published by Macmillan & Co., Ltd., and Philip Lee Warner, in connection with the Medici Society's Exhibition of Modern Printing, held at its galleries in London in October, 1911. Although, in point of fact, the volume is a bit tardy, its value is not thereby lessened, and its workmanship shows the happy results of careful planning and unhurried execution.

Mr. Steele, in his introduction, points out that the earliest English printed books do not owe the esteem in which they are held to any artistic qualities. "Caxton," he says, "was never a good printer, and his letter was unsatisfactory." Bad printing, chequered by a few mediocrities, continued until, in the eighteenth century, William Caslon introduced a type which, though faulty in many respects, far surpassed in shape and harmony anything of the day. By the end of the century, however, the Bodoni press had created a fashion in type hopelessly inartistic, which soon dominated the whole of English printing and left an influence felt even now. In 1844, Charles Whittingham happily revived the use of Caslon's best fonts.

Mr. Steele, continuing, analyzes the various factors that go to make up a beautiful book—those considerations of harmony, margins, leading and spacing of which the layman has little conception. One point, for instance, to be remembered by the printer is that no long rivers of white should meander down the page as a result of the coincidences of spacing in successive lines.

"These are the qualities of a beautiful book," says Mr. Steele, "and it is no exaggeration to say that in no printed book between the closing years of the fifteenth century and those of the nineteenth was any attempt made to obtain them all, though the traditions of good craftsmanship insured that some of them were preserved in many places." It was William Morris, of course, who revived the art of making beautiful books, and founded the Kelmscott Press in 1891. The presses established shortly thereafter, the Vale Press in 1896, the Eragny, Ashdene, Essex House, Doves and Dun Emer (afterwards Cuala) Presses are each given a brief paragraph, followed by further consideration of questions of type and decoration.

The main body of the book is taken up with the catalogues of these presses and others. In the entries, no attempt has been made to comply with the demands of "bibliographical purists." The aim has been simply to give an accurate list of the works printed by the various presses and of the number printed of each, eighteen plates showing in collotype facsimile reproductions of specimen pages.

The present work is set in the "Riccardi Press" type and printed on antique laid rag paper. Of the 350 copies printed, 315 are for sale. There is also a vellum edition of 12 copies, of which 10 are for sale. It should be an essential book of reference to all interested in the history of the art of typography.

EVERETT YEAW ENTERS NEWSON & COMPANY.

EVERETT YEAW, whose experience in school-book publishing covers a period of over twenty-five years, having acquired a substantial interest in the business of Newson & Company, will be actively identified with the management of that house in the future.

Mr. Yeaw was graduated from Cornell in 1882, and began his publishing career with Messrs. Clark & Maynard. On Mr. Clark's withdrawal from the firm, in 1889, Mr. Yeaw purchased his interest, the firm name being then changed to Effingham Maynard & Company. This house, in 1893, was consolidated with Charles E. Merrill & Co., under the corporate name of Maynard, Merrill & Company, of which Mr. Yeaw was elected treasurer. On the death of Mr. Maynard, in 1899, Mr. Yeaw was elected vice-president, and on the reorganization of that company, in 1907, he was again made treasurer. From this company, Mr. Yeaw withdrew in 1910, since which time he has enjoyed a well-earned period of leisure.

MR. GROWOLL'S LIBRARY TO GO TO NEW YORK STATE LIBRARY.

THE New York State Library, which suffered a nearly complete loss by fire a year ago, has purchased en bloc the private library of the late Adolph Growoll, which is particularly rich in bibliographical material and in works relating to publishing and bookselling, both in this country and abroad. As a collection of works on the American book trade, Mr. Growoll's collection has few equals.

Mrs. A. H. Leypoldt has given the State Library her complete sets of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY and Library Journal, each bound in half morocco.

POSTAL MATTERS.

HOUSE PASSES PARCELS POST AMENDMENTS.

AUTHORIZING the appointment of a joint committee of the two houses, which shall report a general parcels post bill at the beginning of the next session of Congress, the House, Wednesday night, after long and spirited debate, agreed upon the experimental parcels post for strictly rural routes and a makeshift general parcels post, which extends to domestic shipments of fourth-class mail matter at the International Postal Union rate of 12 cents a pound for packages weighing not more than eleven pounds. The rural route parcels post will handle packages of the same weight limit at a rate of five cents for the first pound and one cent for each additional pound.

The action of the House is a temporary compromise between the different advocates of various schemes of parcels post legislation. These divergent plans range all the way from the condemnation of the express companies and the establishment of an "express post" to the "zone system" and unlimited parcels post bills.

Dozens of amendments were proposed and lost before the substitute proposed by Chairman Moon of the House Post Office Committee was finally adopted, the battle being fought out while the House was in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. Sulzer, of New York, the champion of a real parcels post, struggled valiantly for an affirmative vote on his eight-cents-a-pound amendment, pointing out that the time for temporizing or compromising the parcels post question was past. His amendment was, however, defeated by the close vote of 74 to 73.

TEXT OF THE PARCELS POST PROVISION.

Mr. Moon's amendment, as amended, reads:

SEC. 8. That hereafter postage shall be paid on matter of the fourth class at the rate of 12 cents per pound except as herein provided.

That no article, package, or parcel shall be mailable as matter of the fourth class which exceeds 11 pounds in weight.

That on each and all rural-delivery routes of the United States the postmaster at the starting point of such route shall, until June 30, 1914, receive and deliver to the carrier or carriers of said routes all articles, parcels, or packages not prohibited to the mails by law and falling under the definition of fourth-class matter and not weighing in excess of 11 pounds for transportation and delivery on said routes; and the carrier shall receive at intermediate points on all rural routes such mail matter of the fourth class for delivery on rural routes only.

The postage shall be paid on all articles, parcels, or packages entitled to transportation under the provisions of this act as matter of the fourth class on rural mail delivery routes only at the following rates: Five cents per pound and 1 cent per pound for each additional pound or fraction thereof up to and including a total of 11 pounds. That the Postmaster-General shall make all rules and regulations necessary and not inconsistent with law to the proper performance of this act and shall provide for the transportation of farm and factory products as fourth-class matter if not perishable in transportation.

COMMISSION APPOINTED.

The joint committee which is to be charged with investigating the entire parcels post question will be composed of three members of the House and three of the Senate. This committee will consider the various plans suggested for a parcels post, including the Lewis-Goeke bill for the condemnation of the express companies, and will report to Congress at the beginning of the next session a bill for the establishment of a permanent and general parcels post system.

Representatives Moon and Lewis argued to-night that the question was big enough to admit of slight delay, and Mr. Lewis, who is a consistent advocate of the plan to take over the express companies, agreed to the compromise arrangement. Mr. Moon explained that the Post Office committee had proposed "only a skeleton" of a parcels post measure, and that the debate in the House had demonstrated the need of further study of the subject.

Representative Lenroot, a Wisconsin insurgent, insisted that the House should dispose of the question without further delay, and asserted hotly, "There is no need waiting until after the elections." The votes on the various amendments proposed to the bill were, however, along non-partisan lines.

The text of the commission amendment reads:

That for the purpose of a full and complete inquiry and investigation into the feasibility and propriety of the establishment of a general parcel post or express post, a joint committee of six persons, three of whom shall be appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives and three by the President of the Senate, is constituted, with full power to appoint clerks, stenographers, and experts to assist them in this work. They shall review the testimony already taken on the subject of parcel post by Senate and House committees and take such other testimony as they deem desirable. That the Postmaster-General and the Interstate Commerce Commission shall furnish such data and otherwise render such assistance to the said commission as may be desired or available. For the purpose of defraying the expenses of this commission the sum of $25,000 is hereby appropriated out of the moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated. The committee shall report fully to Congress on the first Monday in December, 1912.

OTHER POST OFFICE AMENDMENTS.

The House also adopted several other legislative amendments to the Post Office bill. Among them is the Shackelford good roads provision, which provides that the federal government shall contribute to the upbuilding of public highways by paying a graduated toll for the use of all roads over which the rural mails are carried. The estimated annual expenditure is from $7,000,000 to $14,000,000.

Important to publishers is the Barnhart amendment, requiring all newspapers and periodicals to publish conspicuously the names of their editors, owners and stockholders, which was adopted, with amendments, which provide that such publication need be only once in seven days, and that trade union papers and publications published for benevolent purposes shall be exempt. Also, that advertising matter carried as reading matter shall be labeled "advertisement."

Eight or ten other amendments to this amendment were proposed and lost.

THE BARNHART AMENDMENT.

The full text of the Barnhart amendment, as finally passed, is:

"That it shall be unlawful for any person, association, or corporation to enter or deposit, or to have entered or deposited, into the mails of the United States as second class mail matter any newspaper, magazine, or other periodical publication of like kind published in the United States, unless such publication shall have plainly printed in a conspicuous place therein the name or names of the managing editor or managing editors, the name or names of the publisher or publishers, and the name or names of the owner or owners, including the name or names of the owner or owners of stocks, bonds, or other securities which have been issued or sold by the said person, association, or corporation owning or controlling such publication and which may be outstanding. Also all editorial or other reading matter published in any such circulating periodical for the insertion of which money or other consideration is accepted by the publisher or publishers shall be plainly marked 'advertisement' or signed by the name or names of the person or persons in whose interest or interests such article is published. Any person, association, or corporation that shall so enter or deposit, or have entered or deposited in the mails of the United States any such newspaper, magazine, or periodical publication of like kind in violation of the foregoing provisions shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and be fined in any sum not less than $100 nor more than $1000 for each offense.

"Provided, That in the case of newspapers published daily, or daily except Sunday, it shall be sufficient to publish said names once a week on the same day each week.

"Provided, That nothing in this paragraph contained shall apply to or include periodical publications published by or under the auspices of fraternal or benevolent societies or orders or by trades-unions."

In the course of the debate it was pointed out that with periodicals having several thousand stockholders, this provision would impose a serious financial hardship; the only reply made was that few periodicals had many stockholders.

The bill passed the House, Thursday, by a vote of 227 to 5.

TRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE.

THE first of the Booksellers' League's series of trade lectures was held, Tuesday noon last, at one o'clock. By the courtesy of the Liberal Club, the assembly room on the fourth floor of their building, at 132 East 19th Street, was tendered the League, and proved an admirable meeting-place.

The attendance was most encouraging, between fifty and sixty booksellers and clerks, both men and women, being present, and scarcely a book store or department store in Greater New York was unrepresented.

Simon Brentano, the speaker, was introduced by Charles C. Shoemaker, the president of the League, who outlined briefly the scope and purpose of the lecture course which has been planned. Mr. Brentano's paper is reprinted, in a slightly condensed form, elsewhere in this issue of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY.

No less interesting, however, than the lecture proper, was the questionnaire that followed, when Mr. Brentano answered questions that came from all parts of the room. He stated that he believed in all kinds of book-trade organizations for mutual improvement, and that a clerk could never learn too much about his stock, about new publications and literature in general. He emphasized especially, however, the advisability of certain clerks in a store specializing along certain lines—one in poetry, for example, one in scientific books, one in foreign books, one in dictionaries, etc., etc. In fact, each clerk should have two or three specialties, for special information on which the other clerks could refer to him.

Mr. Brentano added that his store welcomed suggestions from his staff, and that he thought a prize system for ideas often worked out well. He said, in reply to a question, that the Brentano store had a code of rules, a code constantly being amended and added to, and that important rules were sent around to be read and initialed by every employee in the store.

He believed in allowing employees to take home new books for personal reading, providing the privilege were not abused; and even in allowing employees to read in the store, providing care was taken to be alert in noticing and attending on customers. Several employing booksellers present agreed on the latter point.

CORRESPONDENCE.

BUYING NEW FICTION.

WATERTOWN, N. Y.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

THE time has come—in fact, has passed for some of the booksellers remote from the centers—when the publisher's representative will call on us booksellers requesting immediate selection of their fall publications. We like to see the young men. They each have the best line in the market and each has by far the best-seller for the coming year, so good a seller that no self-respecting bookseller can fail to take less than twenty-five to one hundred copies or more.

Now, Mr. Publisher, we know your course is an easy one. With authors of the best kind of novels fairly throwing their manuscripts at you, at your own price, you can have no troubles. You simply take a few good manuscripts, print a few "dummies" with a page or two of reading matter, a cover and two or three pictures and start out your man for early orders. Not until these orders come in do your presses start running any sized edition, all sold before printing or binding.

How about the bookseller? He is urged to buy long before there is even a remote call for the book, and if he is a good guesser he has bought the best-seller in quantities, to be paid for on receipt of same for the cash discount. Each salesman feels sure he has at least one or two that will lead the market. In fact he knows, for he says he has read them. Of course he knows nothing of the many other books that may be equally good or better sellers. Perhaps his customer may be better informed, or is waiting for an advanced copy, to determine the merits of several before purchasing.

Now, Mr. Publisher, we all know this book-buying is more or less of a lottery. A strong unfavorable review from some leading periodical may kill an otherwise good seller. Or someone who has never before been heard from writes an exceedingly clever book. Some author, heretofore a popular writer, may put out some old oft rejected manuscript, thinking his or her former successes will force a sale on this old matter that should never have seen light. Then, how about another good book that this author may put out? Hasn't the sale of that been fearfully injured by such a procedure? Who dares buy when he has on his shelves some of these "plugs" of this same writer?

Now, honestly, will not the wise bookseller wait until later, watch the reviews and with one or two copies for immediate wants, and after reading and judging for himself, buy what he pretty nearly knows will have a good sale? Wouldn't you do this, Mr. Publisher, if you were at the retail end of the business? Would you put in quantity orders months before a book was even printed?

The fact is we want fewer books and better ones. Then our shelves will not be filled with ones and twos of old "plugs" for which we paid anywhere from 80 cents to 90 cents, which to move at all will have to go on our 25-cent counter. How can this be otherwise with the large line of re-prints and good sellers at 50 cents?

Will some good wiseacre give us retailers some good pointers in the buying of new fiction? Don't wait for the convention to do this, for we cannot all be there. We would like it quick.

JOHN STERLING.

OBITUARY NOTES.

HIRAM H. WALDO, of Rockford, Ill., one of the oldest booksellers in this country, if not in the world, died last week, aged eighty-five. He conducted a book store in Rockford for fifty-seven years, fifty-three years in the same location.

THE Rev. Dr. George William Knox, professor of philosophy and history of religion at Union Theological Seminary, in New York, since 1899, died in Corea, April 26, of pneumonia. Born at Rome, N. Y., in 1853, Dr. Knox graduated from Hamilton College in 1874, and later attended Auburn Theological Seminary. After being ordained a Presbyterian minister, in 1877, he immediately engaged in missionary work in Japan. He was vice-president of the Asiatic Society of Japan from 1891 to 1892, and of the Order of the Rising Sun in 1908. Dr. Knox was the author of (in Japanese) "A Brief System of Theology," "Outlines of Homiletics," "Christ, the Son of God," "The Basis of Ethics," "The Mystery of Life" (in English), "A Japanese Philosopher," "The Christian Point of View," "Japanese Life in Town and Country," "The Development of Religion in Japan," and "The Religion of Jesus."

RUSSELL HINMAN, who, since 1890, had been in charge of the editorial office of the American Book Company in New York City, died at his home in Summit, N. J., on Sunday.

Mr. Hinman was born at Cincinnati, O., on Jan. 23, 1853, and was educated at Antioch College. As a civil engineer he was engaged in the construction of the Cincinnati Southern Railroad. Mr. Hinman was the editor of geographical text-books for Van Antwerp, Bragg & Co., publishers of Cincinnati, from 1879 to 1890. In 1890 he refused appointment as geographer of the eleventh United States census, becoming instead editor in charge of the editorial offices of the American Book Company, which he helped to organize and of which he was a director. Among the many text-books of which he was the author, one of the best known was "Hinman's Physical Geography." He is survived by his father, who is 95 years old, a widow and three daughters.

HOMER DAVENPORT, cartoonist and author, died, May 2, at 514 West 114th Street, New York City, of pneumonia. Mr. Davenport was born on an Oregon farm forty-five years ago, and without even having attended an art school or any other school to any extent, for that matter, became one of the most successful newspaper cartoonists of his day, working for, among other papers, the San Francisco Examiner, New York Mail, and the New York Journal. Mr. Davenport devoted much of his time of recent years to the stock farm he owned at Morris Plains, N. J., where he bred Arabian horses, which were his special hobby. Mr. Davenport was the author of a number of animal stories, as well as "The Bell of Silverton," "The Dollar or The Man," and "The Diary of a Country Boy," all reminiscent of his Oregon boyhood, and illustrated with his own sketches. His book, "My Quest of the Arabian Horse," details his successful trip to the desert some years ago, armed with a special iradé of the Sultan to select and export true-blooded Arabs. He gathered a lot of interesting drawings, and the humor of some of his hobnobbing with the sheiks was unique.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

GEORGE BIRMINGHAM's curate character, "J. J." who appeared in "Spanish Gold" and "The Simpkins Plot," is on the stage again in "The Major's Niece" (Doran).

THE YALE UNIVERSITY PRESS has taken over from the Baker & Taylor Company the publication of Arthur Kingsley Porter's comprehensive work on "Mediæval Architecture."

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY have reprinted in pamphlet form, from The Book News Monthly, a set of illustrated articles on John Ames Mitchell, novelist, editor and artist.

THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS (American branch) notify the trade that the recent fire at 35 West Thirty-second Street will not interfere with the shipping of goods or the execution of orders.

"ONE OF US," a psychological novel, by Ezra Brudno, and "The Raid of the Guerilla," a collection of stories of the Great Smoky Mountains, by Charles Egbert Craddock, are on the Lippincott spring list.

"WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA FOR 1912-1913" (Vol. VII.), published by A. N. Marquis & Co., is now ready. Three thousand new biographies have been added, making a total of 18,794—all revised and brought down to date.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY has recently organized a library department for the purpose of establishing closer relations with libraries throughout the country. This work will be in charge of Miss Jean MacKinnon Holt.

"THE ISLE OF STRIFE," a story of adventure and hair-breadth escapes, by George C. Shedd, and "Wilhelmina Changes Her Mind," a sprightly tale by Florence Morse Kingsley, are additions to the Small, Maynard list promised for May 18.

DANA ESTES & Co. have ready this week Philip W. Sergeant's "My Lady Castlemaine," the biography of Barbara Villiers, that astonishing beauty, and greatest termagant that ever ruled a king who helped make political history in the seventeenth century.

A ROMANCE filled with mad rides and daring escapes, "The Minister of Police," by Henry Mountjoy, will be published in May by the Bobbs-Merrill Co. The time is that fascinating one when the fifteenth Louis ruled France—and Madame Du Barry ruled Louis.

THE suit of John Adams Thayer against Colonel W. D. Mann et al., for fraudulent misappropriation of the funds of the company prior to the purchase of the Smart Set Magazine by Thayer, was settled out of court last week by the payment by Mann of $150,000 cash and securities.

CLARENCE W. PIERCE, treasurer and general manager of J. P. Ambler Company, booksellers and stationers, at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., has been elected a delegate to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and will spend the month of May in Minneapolis, where the conference is to be held.

THE first volume of the House and Garden Series, "Making a Rose Garden," by Henry H. Saylor, published this spring by McBride, Nast & Co., has been followed recently by "Making a Lawn," "Making a Garden Bloom to This Year," "Making a Tennis Court," "Making the Grounds Attractive with Shrubbery," and "Making a Rock Garden."

"THE WHITE GHOST OF DISASTER," a sea story, as told by the "Chief Mate" of an ocean liner, betrays a marvelous similarity to the disaster that befell the ill-fated Titanic, and strangely anticipated that terrible tragedy. This story, by Captain Mayn Clew Garnett, was written a year ago, recently appeared as a serial, is now announced for immediate issue by G. W. Dillingham Company.

THE NEW YORK BIBLE SOCIETY has been enlarging its work. In the month of March it distributed more than 20,000 copies of the Scriptures in New York City—a larger number than ever before in the same time. These volumes were printed in thirty-six different languages. The Bibles are sold at cost or less than cost—free copies going to applicants who are unable to pay. Only the King James version is distributed.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made by Doubleday, Page & Co. of two additional biographical publications for the spring season: "The Life of David C. Broderick," by Jeremiah Lynch, a clear cut picture of this early senator, whose life was so intimately connected with the history of his State, and the autobiographical work of George William Erskine Russell, LL.D., youngest son of Lord Charles Russell, M. P., shedding an interesting light on the author's fifty years of public life in England.

LITTLE, BROWN & COMPANY announce the following novels for May 25: "The Lighted Way," a new novel by E. Phillips Oppenheim, which has been appearing serially in the Saturday Evening Post; "My Demon Motor Boat," amusing tales by George Fitch, author of "At Good Old Siwash"; "A Candidate for Truth," by J. D. Beresford, author of "The Early History of Jacob Stahl"; also a book for boys, "The Young Crusaders" and "Pin-Money Suggestions," by Lilian W. Babcock.

"WONDERS OF PLANT LIFE," Cassell & Co., deals with curious facts connected with the lives of common plants and flowers, such as poppies, nasturtiums, orchids, cornflowers, and water-lilies, under such chapter headings as "The Assertive Plant," "The Plant as a Host," "The Plant as a Parent," "The Plant and its Helpers," "The Feelings of Plants," and "The Evolution of the Flower." There are eight Lumière color plates by H. Essenhig Corke, and forty black-and-white photographs by the author, S. L. Bastin.

"CHRISTY" MATHEWSON, the star pitcher of the New York Giants, by many followers of baseball declared the greatest twirler that ever lived, has written a series of stories about the big leaguers, the men who have played the game with him, which is published to-day by the Putnams under the title of "Pitching in a Pinch." These tales are told from the point of view of a player who has been through eleven years of baseball strife in the Big League, and who, almost single-handed, won a world's championship for the Giants in 1905.

A NEW Lincoln story, "The Counsel Assigned," by Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews, was recently published. As she presented Abraham Lincoln, the President, in "The Perfect Tribute," so now she presents Lincoln, the young lawyer. She shows him turning his back deliberately on a great personal opportunity and striding across the rough Illinois country in answer to a request for help from those who had helped him; shows him in court, shrewd, rugged, eloquent, his own ambition submerged in the defense of a boy on trial for murder, whose parents had once given him a home.

MISS JANE ADDAMS, whose book, "A New Conscience and an Ancient Evil," has just been published by the Macmillan Co., has been making a good deal of talk because of her vaudeville début. Appearing at the Majestic Theater in Chicago between the regular acts on the bill, she spoke for eight minutes on the woman suffrage question. The Chicago Record-Herald, in commenting upon the event says: "Judging from the welcome accorded Miss Addams when her 'turn' was announced and from the applause she received upon its conclusion, she would have been welcome for many more minutes than eight."

OVER Easter Sunday, the English Booksellers' Association, in a body, with their wives and families, took a vacation trip over to Paris as guests of the Association Amicale des Commis-Libraries Français, and were warmly welcomed and royally entertained. Besides the Cercle de la Librairie and other spots of special interest to the bookseller, there was a dinner, luncheons, a little cordial speechmaking (a similar party of booksellers from Belgium also being present), and time for regular sightseeing. The whole trip was most enjoyable, and is indicative of the friendly feeling of fellowship that exists in the book trade the world over.

OUTING PUBLISHING COMPANY have in preparation, or have just published, the following volumes in the Outing Handbook Series: "Apple Growing," by M. C. Burritt; "Camp and Cabins," by Oliver Kemp; "Making and Keeping Soils," by David Buffum; "Navigation for the Amateur," by Capt. E. T. Morton; "Practical Poultry Keeping," by R. B. Sando; "Profitable Breeds of Poultry," by A. S. Wheeler; "Rifle and Rifle Shooting," by Charles Askins; "Scottish and Irish Terriers," by Williams Haynes; "Sporting Firearms," by Horace Kephart; "The Yachtsman's Handbook," by Commander C. S. Stanworth, U. S. N., and others.

MESSRS. T. C. & E. C. JACK, the English publishers, have published an interesting book on "Monograms and Ciphers," by A. A. Turbayne. It provides some 135 full-page plates, showing no less than 900 original designs for monograms and ciphers. The book is practically a complete work of two-letter combinations in a single volume, so arranged that the designer can always find a base on which to build a design of three or more letters. A monogram, it is perhaps worth noting, is "a combination of two or more letters in which one letter forms part of another and cannot be separated from it. A cipher is merely an interlocking or placing together of two or more letters, being in no way dependent for their parts on other of the letters."

IN their new novel, entitled "Love Gilds the Scene, and Women Guide the Plot," Mr. and Mrs. Egerton Castle, whose novels during the last few years have been mostly of modern life and problems, return to their earlier genre of an old-world setting. The surroundings are of the middle Georgian period. In "Love Gilds the Scene," indeed, will be met a number of the characters—now but a few years older—who played their part in the "Bath Comedy," "Incomparable Bel-lairs," and "French Nan." The tale told is of the same lighthearted, gallant humors of Mayfair and Bath, of the road and posting inns. The title, which is something of a record for length, is suggested by a line from the epilogue to "The Rivals":

Through all the drama, whether damned or not,
Love gilds the scene, and women guide the plot.

THE REV. W. J. COUPER, of Glasgow, is writing a book on the Miller family, two members of which, George Miller of Dunbar, and James Miller of Haddington, were printers and publishers. George Miller was in the early nineteenth century a pioneer in the provision of cheap and good books, intended to counteract the pernicious publications of the chapman. These were issued from his press in Dunbar, where he had a reading room containing 2500 volumes of an "improving character." He also published the Cheap Magazine and later the Monthly Monitor; in all these enterprises he had the collaboration of his brother James, who carried on business at Haddington. Mr. Couper will be grateful for any letters, papers, or other information relating to any member of the family, or the names of any bookselling or publishing firms that had business relations with these Millers. Original documents may be forwarded direct to the publisher, T. Fisher Unwin, who will make himself answerable for their prompt return.

In the Bookman for May the special articles include the second instalment of Frederic Taber Cooper's "Some Representative English Story Tellers," this time dealing with William De Morgan; "The Painters of the Palisades" (illustrated), by Bailey Millard; "Alumni Publications of the American Universities," by Edwin M. Norris; and "Millions and Millionaires in Fiction. Part II.," by Edna Kenton. "The Advent of the Little Theatre" (illustrated), by Clayton Hamilton, is the feature of this month's "drama" section. "The Anti-Climax, and Some Recent Novels" reviews the following works: "Joseph in Jeopardy," "The Squirrel Cage," "The Unknown Woman," "Tales of a Greek Island," "Beyond the Law," "Among the Idol-makers," "Julia France and Her Times." Poems by Edwin Markham and Arthur Guiterman appear in this issue. The obituaries of the Authors' Club of New York for 1911, including the names of Henry Abbey, Edwin Asa Dix, George Cary Eggleston, Thomas Wentworth Higginson, Charles Battell Loomis, and others are brought together in an "In Memoriam" article, written by those who were friends of these well-known men.

SOME Americans seem to think that the absence of an international copyright law worked only in one direction. The April Bookman, in its "Chronicle and Comment," pointed out that there are two sides to the question. As a matter of fact a great many thousands—a great many hundreds of thousands—of the works of J. Fenimore Cooper, of Washington Irving, of Edgar Allan Poe, of Ralph Waldo Emerson, of Nathaniel Hawthorne, of Henry W. Longfellow, and of a score of other Americans were published in England before the passage of the copyright law of 1892. Do Americans who are now so contritely deploring "American piracy," think that every single copy of these books meant a royalty paid to an American author by a British publisher? Has there been any perceptible movement on the part of the British publishers to raise a conscience fund for the direct lineal descendants of Washington Irving on account of the pleasure generations of English readers have derived from "Rip Van Winkle" and "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow"? (The fact that Washington Irving did not have any lineal descendants has, in the words of Pooh Bah, nothing to do with the case.) If the plight of the American author of Dickens' time in the English market deserves attention, his condition, at home, owing to the non-existence of a copyright law, was infinitely worse. He was asked to compete on terms of the utmost inequality with Dickens' great genius and popularity, with the result that no American writer, no matter how brilliant his talent, could hope to make a fair living with his pen. Let Americans abuse the old conditions and be heartily ashamed of them. Let them reverence the memory of Charles Dickens and his immortal creations. But let them not forget that while Dickens was making his ten thousand pounds a year, Edgar Allan Poe was experiencing hunger and want in his Fordham cottage. If there is need of truckling and reparation, let it begin at home.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ALBION, MICH.—Louis C. Van Gorden succeeds Homer C. Blair, dealer in drugs, books and stationery.

COON RAPIDS, IA.—Charles Tucker has succeeded C. B. Duffy, druggist and bookseller.

KALAMAZOO, MICH.—Miss Carrie E. Eggleston, formerly in the book and news business at Coldwater, Mich., has recently taken charge of the Book Department of Gilmore Brothers' Department Store.

MT. CARMEL, ILL.—C. A. Martin has purchased the bookstore of T. W. Hill.

MUSCATINE, IA.—The Reeder Company has taken over the entire stock and fixtures of Wagner Brothers, dealers in books and stationery.

NEW YORK CITY.—W. F. Brainard has retired from the firm of Newson & Company and opened an office at 15 East 26th Street, New York, and resumed his business of manufacturing books for publishers.

NEW YORK CITY.—Sherwood's, Inc. is in the hands of a receiver. The store recently moved from its Maiden Lane address to new and larger quarters on Fulton Street, and its difficulty is indirectly due to its enlargement.

Mr. Sherwood gives us to understand that the receivership will be but temporary.

ROCKTON, ILL.—R. J. Balsley succeeds R. L. Seright as proprietor of the Herald Bookstore.

SUVA, FIJI ISLANDS.—Bolton Stinson is establishing a book department in connection with his art store, at this address, and wishes to get in touch with American publishers and dealers to receive their catalogues.

THE COLLECTOR.

BIBLIOGRAPHY OF GEORGE MEREDITH

LUTHER S. LIVINGSTON, in The Evening Post, New York, submits for the collector of George Meredith a chapter of interesting data concerning the bibliography.

A new edition, condensed and somewhat revised, of Arundell Esdaile's "Bibliography of George Meredith" is printed at the end of vol. xxvii of the Memorial Edition of his works, recently published. Though called a "bibliography" on the title-page, he says, it is more correctly described as a "chronological list" in the head lines. Only much abbreviated titles are given, and no collations whatever. A good bibliography of Meredith is a desideratum. As there is a strong interest at present in the first editions of Meredith among collectors, the following bibliographical notes may be of interest.

In the "Poems" (London, 1851), Meredith's first published volume, there should be found a slip of errata, showing four errors. Below the heading "Errata" is a short rule with a diamond-shaped expansion in the center. At some time this slip was reprinted, the later form having a straight rule, a trifle shorter than the original. The space between the rule and the first line of text is somewhat less in the reprint than in the genuine slip. Harry E. Widener owns an important copy of the book, the errata slip of which contains an additional correction in Meredith's autograph. This seems to fix the priority of the variety with the diamond-shaped expansion in the rule.

There are two distinct editions of Meredith's third volume of verse, "Poems and Lyrics of the Joy of Earth," printed in 1883, which have heretofore been bought and sold indiscriminately as first edition. The actual first edition was printed by R. Clay, Sons & Taylor, and has their imprint on page 6. The second edition, page for page, has the imprint of R. & R. Clark, Edinburgh. Some copies of this volume contain an errata slip, but, in most copies, apparently, the first of the errors noted, "Revotl" for "Revolt," in the last line of p. 9, has been corrected. The presence of this error seems to indicate the earlier issue. Some copies contain a cancelled leaf for pp. 63, 64, pasted on the stub of the original leaf, which has been removed. Some copies, also, contain at the end a catalogue of Macmillan's publications, dated "April, 1883." There are also slight variations in the binding.

The second edition, printed by R. & R. Clark, though an entire resetting, contains most of the errors indicated in the errata slip of the first edition. The most important textual difference between the two are the improved titles of three of the sonnets. These are corrected to read as follows: P. 162, "The Spirit of Shakespeare: Continued"; p. 176, "Camelus Saltat: Continued"; p. 150, "My Theme: Continued." In the first edition printed by Clay, the title of each of these three sonnets is merely "Continued."

Almost all copies of "A Reading of Life" (1901) contains two cancelled leaves, pp. 65-68, printed as a separate sheet and pasted on the stub of one of the original leaves which have been removed. We have never seen a copy containing the originals. At least three "separates," or early pulls, from the types of poems contributed by Meredith to magazines have been preserved. These are:

(1.) "Mother to Babe." A leaflet, one page, verso blank. Apparently printed from the types of the English Illustrated Magazine for October, 1886. It is without the illustration by William Meredith, which was printed on the same page when the poem appeared in the magazine. In the magazine, also, there was a page-number "25" besides printing on the reverse of the leaf.

(2.) "The Appeasement of Demeter." Four pages, numbered [1], 2, 3 and 4, the page numbers in the center, and without headlines. Apparently printed from the types as set for Macmillan's Magazine for September, 1887. In the meantime it is paged 374 to 377, and occupies three leaves, there being other printing on pages 373 and 378. There are also headlines.

(3.) "Outside the Crowd." A leaflet, one page, verso blank. Printed, apparently from the types of the National Review for September, 1896, where the poem was first published. In the magazine there was printed on the reverse also the page-numbers "25" and "26."

These cannot, strictly speaking, be called proof-sheets, but are pulls from the types after corrections had been made.

The private, unauthorized, first editions of "Jump to Glory Jane," of which fifty copies were printed in 1889 as a little pamphlet of sixteen pages, the last blank, was not mentioned in the first edition of Esdaile's "Bibliography," but is included in the "Chronological List."

Another private reprint, "Twenty Poems by George Meredith," being a collection of pieces contributed by him to Household Words between 1850 and 1856, issued in an edition of twenty-five copies only, in 1909, is not noted by Esdaile. These poems, when they appeared in Household Words, were unsigned, but their authenticity is proved by the office record of the magazine. Two other poems published in the same magazine in 1850 were, with some alterations, reprinted by Meredith himself in his first volume, published the next year, 1851.

"George Meredith and the Monthly Observer" is the title of an essay by Maurice Buxton Forman, of which twenty-one copies were printed privately in London last year, and which will interest Meredith collectors. The Monthly Observer was a manuscript magazine, of which Meredith was one of the editors and contributors, and which contains his earliest literary works known to be extant. Only five numbers are known, Nos. 11, 13, 14, 15, and 16, for January, March, April, May, and June, 1849. These were sold at Sotheby's about a year ago.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE Bulletin of Bibliography announces that hereafter the Magazine Subject Index will not appear quarterly in the Bulletin, but only in book form, annually. The space hitherto occupied by this index will be devoted to bibliographies of timely interest. The April number contains one on the "recall" and the first instalment of an "index to fairy tales." "The Dramatic Index" will appear in the Bulletin quarterly, as heretofore.

THE Magazine Subject Index, 1911, including as Part II. the Dramatic Index of 1911, is now at hand. Sixteen periodicals not heretofore included are indexed in this volume. The annual cumulation of "The Dramatic Index" covers books, book reviews, dramatic articles, and illustrations (including portraits of actors and actresses) in the periodicals of 1911, and is an index to the authorship and text of plays.

Julia France is the modern woman. Born and brought up in St. Kitts, she is married at eighteen to a dissolute British naval officer, whom she merely dislikes instead of loathing, and with whom she sets forth cheerfully for England. She soon learns all his wickedness, and finally makes her escape from him. She becomes a suffrage leader. In the end a hustling Californian, with his masculine claims, proves too much for her advanced ideas, and she sinks her aims in his.

Bowne, Borden Parker. Kant and Spencer; a critical exposition. Bost., Houghton Mifflin. c. 11+439 p. O. $3 n.

Point of view is that which Professor Bowne made prominent in his own philosophical teaching and writing. His exposition of the essentials in Kant's work is clear and interesting, taking up successively the doctrines of experience, space and time, the transcendental logic, etc. The part devoted to Herbert Spencer is more sharply critical and antagonistic. Professor Bowne particularly opposes Spencer's agnosticism and his doctrine of religion. He also examines very critically the English philosopher's views of science, life and mind, and his empirical theory of thought.

Bradley, Mary Hastings. The favor of kings. N. Y., Appleton. c. 8+387 p. il. D. $1.30 n.

Reveals the romance, mystery, and scandal which have always shrouded the name of Anne Boleyn. Parted from her young lover, and mocked by the queen, Anne, a lovely, spirited maid of honor at the gay, corrupt court of Henry the Eighth, finds a proud revenge in playing with the attentions of the king. It is only play at first, but when the king's increasing passion offers to clear the throne for her, the girl's pride, smarting under the queen's sneers and the gossip of the court, drives her to this strange betrothal. Her subsequent history, the amazing situations and pitfalls into which she is led and her final tragic downfall are told.

Kirke Bentley, rich, indolent and talented, buys a violin from a young Italian and discovers that it is a Stradivarius with not only the maker's name in it, but also the man for whom he made it and several of his descendants. He determines to find these people, and so goes to Beritola, a small Italian village. Here he finds a lovely girl, her father and aunt and a smuggling Count who wishes to marry the girl, all involved in the violin mystery, which is solved by his amusing friend, Phil Ainsworth, and brought to a happy conclusion to the sound of wedding bells.

Daviess, Maria Thompson. The melting of Molly; il. by R. M. Crosby. Indianapolis, Bobbs-Merrill. 200 p. D. $1 n.

Molly is a widow, young and charming, but, alas, plump. She gets a letter from the man she thinks she has always loved, the deceased Mr. Carter being negligible in that respect, saying he is coming back and asking to see her in the same blue muslin she wore when he saw her last. That blue muslin has a twenty-three-inch waist. Molly is now inches beyond it, and there lies the tragedy. Dr. Moore helps her by suggestions about exercise and diet to achieve the "string-bean" effect desired, and then Molly is so lovely she spreads general havoc in the village.

Hero is a quiet, boyish German soldier serving Cromwell, who, though a deadly duelist, is at bottom heroic and self-sacrificing. He loves a little tomboy Royalist heiress, who is hard beset by an unscrupulous lot of guardians and fairly made a prisoner in her home. Perils and stirring episodes abound, rising to a vivid climax. By author of "Allison's lad," etc.

Driant, Alfred François, ["Captain Daurit," pseud.] The sunken submarine; with front. by Lyle T. Hammond. Bost., Little, Brown. c. 3+308 p. D. $1.25 n.

Hero is wrecked in the 600-ton French submarine "Dragon-Fly" off the African coast in thirty fathoms of water, and for six days he and the torpedo quartermaster, a sturdy Breton named Yvonnec, struggle in vain to find some way of escape. It is not until the two brave men are physically exhausted and resigned to their fate that deliverance comes; and the part a young woman plays in the rescue adds the element of romance to the story.

- Vachell, Horace Annesley. Blinds down. N. Y., Doran. c. 329 p. D. $1.20 n.
By author of "John Verney," etc. Scene is laid in England, story is based on the contrast between two generations of women. For the older, woman's purity consists in ignorance, the blinds must be kept down; the young rebel lifts a corner of the blind, gets a dazzling view of life, and never draws the blind again. Rosetta Mauleverer is brought up by two step-sisters a generation older than she. They marry her to a man years older than herself, a viceroy in India, who is a brute and abuses her and their little daughter. Rosetta runs away with the man she has always loved, leaving her child with the sisters, who believe her dead. When this child grows up the old ladies find they must draw up the blinds.
- Van Vorst, Marie. The broken bell; il. by Fk. Craig. Indianapolis, Bobbs-Merrill. c. 276 p. S. $1 n.
By author of "The girl from his town," etc. Maria Sant' Alcione, married to an Italian count, has forgiven him his repeated unfaithfulness for ten years. At first because she loved him, then for their child's sake, and after the latter's death perhaps from force of habit. She goes to a mountain village to visit an old servant and meets a cousin of her husband's. They love each other and mean to go away together when a really repentant letter from the count calls Maria back to take up the threads of her life and try to weave a more lasting and perfect pattern.

Walling, W: English. Socialism as it is; a survey of the world-wide revolutionary movement. N. Y., Macmillan. c. 12+452 p. O. $2 n.

Book is the result of twelve years of study in Germany, Great Britain, United States, France, Australia, Italy and Belgium. It is divided into three parts. First deals with external environment out of which Socialism is growing and by which it is shaped; second with the internal struggles by which it is shaping and defining itself; third with the reaction of the movement on its environment. Account is based either on acts of Socialist organizations and of parties and governments in which they are in conflict, or on responsible declarations of statesmen, editors, economists, etc. Index.

Wells, Carolyn. A chain of evidence; with il. in color by Gayle Hoskins. Phil., Lippincott. c. '07-'12. 324 p. D. $1.25 n.

Otis Landon and his sister have only been in their New York apartment two weeks when they are called to the assistance of Janet Pembroke, a beautiful girl living in the opposite apartment with her miserly old uncle, who has been found dead in bed. At first it is supposed he died from natural causes, then it is discovered that a long pin has been driven into the base of his brain. All the clues point to Janet as the murderer, but a too perfect alibi on the real culprit's part reveals to a clever detective the guilty man, and Janet finds happiness with Landon.

Whitlock, Brand. The fall guy. Indianapolis, Bobbs-Merrill. c. 382 p. D. $1.25 n.

Advertising copy should reach us Tuesday noon—earlier, if proof is desired out-of-town. Forms close Thursday noon.

Under the heading "BOOKS WANTED" booktrade subscribers, under their own names, are given five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertisement for books out of print in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding 100 lines a year. If over five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line. Books not out of print, repeated matter, and all advertisements from nonsubscribers cost 10 cents a line. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noted.

In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY, does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withholding the privilege of advertising should occasion arise, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

"Books Wanted" must be designated by actual title, not by "any."

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.

Under "BOOKS FOR SALE" or for other small undisplayed advertisements, the charge is 10 cents a nonpareil line. No reduction for repeated matter. Count seven words to the line.

Reference List of New Publications

Recorded in APRIL, 1912

This Reference List enters the books recorded during the month under (1) author, in Clarendon type, anonymous books having Clarendon type for the first word; (2) title in Roman; (3) subject-heading in SMALL CAPS; (4) name of series in Italics.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

For books received sizes are given in CAPS, books not received sizes are given in Roman numerals, 4°, 8°, etc. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. Where no specified the binding is cloth.

Those desiring to learn the entire publishing output of the month in any one field should look under one of the following MAIN HEADINGS:

PHILOSOPHY	MEDICINE	LITERATURE
RELIGION AND THEOLOGY	AGRICULTURE	POETRY
SOCIOLOGY	HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS	DRAMA
LAW	BUSINESS	FICTION
EDUCATION	ENGINEERING, TECHNOLOGY	BIOGRAPHY
PHILOLOGY	FINE ARTS	GEOGRAPHY AND TRAVEL
SCIENCE	GAMES, SPORTS, AMUSEMENTS	HISTORY

Besides the titles listed under each of these headings cross reference is made from each to a limited number of cognate headings which collectively give all the new publications of the month in the given subject or group of subjects.

Inquirers looking for books on a specific topic should look hereafter under the general subject to which that topic belongs, i.e., GEOLOGY rather than SILURIAN PERIOD; MATHEMATICS rather than CALCULUS; ECONOMICS rather than WAGES. Books regarding specific Religious denominations, countries and persons, however, should still be sought for under their individual names.

Are Your Plans All Made to attend the Booksellers' Convention ?

The 12th annual convention comes this year May 14th, 15th and 16th.

At the Hotel Astor, as usual, 44th Street and Broadway, New York City.

The papers to be read will be live ones by some of the best men in the trade: "Juvenile Readers as an Asset;" "Co-operating with the Bookseller"; "Relation of the Bookseller with the Travelling Salesman"—don't these topics sound to the point? And there's a half dozen others just as good, with unusual attractions in preparation on the social side.

Mayor Gaynor will open the Convention ; be on hand Tuesday morning to greet him.

As for the banquet Thursday night—biggest and best yet. Meredith Nicholson and W. Morgan Shuster to be among the speakers.

Applications and correspondence should be addressed to the headquarters of the Association, 27 East 22d Street, New York.

WALTER S. LEWIS, Secretary

P. S.—The ladies are welcome to the banquet this year, remember, as well as the convention itself. Bring your wife.

RE-ORDERS AND PICK-UP ORDERS

WE are equipped to enable retail dealers to secure their re-orders for stock and daily pick-up orders for books of all publishers, all on one order, in one shipment and on one bill. Mail and express orders are shipped the same day the order is received—and over 90% of such orders are shipped complete.

Overheard in a Bookshop

Reader : "Haven't you any more stories like those dashing novels, 'The Colonel of the Red Huzzars,' and 'The Princess Dehra'?"

Bookseller : "Weren't they about Valeria, the land of romance?"

Reader : Yes, and Armand, Lotzen, Dehra, and the rest of them."

Bookseller : "You're just in time. 'The Last Try,' Mr. Scott's new novel, tells of Lotzen's last attempt to win Valeria. It is without question Mr. Scott's most brilliant novel."

Reader : "Do you ever get any more big, strong romances like 'Routledge Rides Alone'?"

Bookseller : "Surely. Here is Mr. Comfort's new novel, 'Fate Knocks at the Door.' This is the kind of romance that will carry you along with a rush of stirring events, and is altogether Mr. Comfort's most powerful work. It will please you mightily."

Auto Enthusiast : "What's the best in automobile stories?"

Bookseller : "'From the Car Behind' leads them all. It is one continuous joy-ride,—the speed never slackens and one turns the pages breathlessly as thrill succeeds thrill until the final big race."

Detective : "Got any new 'Sherlock Holmes' stories?"

Bookseller : "No, but Fleming Stone, the American detective of the type of Wm. J. Burns, big, fearless and resourceful, figures in Carolyn Wells' 'A Chain of Evidence,' which is, unquestionably, the season's best detective story."
